EACH ISSUE of The Annals of Iowa brings to light the deeds, misdeeds, and accomplishments of our predecessors and shows how they fit into the intricate mosaic of Iowa's past. Its in-depth articles will satisfy even the most serious explorer of Iowa's past.

Anyone with a serious interest in Iowa history will gain valuable perspective from the pages of the Annals. Give it as a gift to a friend or relative. Check to see if your public, school, or academic library subscribes; if they don't, encourage them to do so or, better yet, donate a subscription.

Contributors

JOANNE ABEL GOLDMAN is associate professor of history at the University of Northern Iowa. Her research interests are in the history of science and technology. Since publishing her book, Building New York's Sewers (1997), she has published several articles (including two in the Annals of Iowa) on the history of the Ames Laboratory, which led to her interest in atomic energy education. Concurrently, she has been working on the rise and fall of the domestic rare earth industry. He is grateful to the State Historical Society of Iowa for the research grant that supported this project.

DEREK ODEN is associate professor of history at Del Mar College in Corpus Christi, Texas. He earned a Ph.D. in agricultural history and rural studies from Iowa State University in 2006. His research interests include food history and agricultural studies. He is working on a book-length study of the effort to reduce farm accidents in the Midwest. He is grateful to the State Historical Society of Iowa for the research grant that supported this project.

The State Historical Society of Iowa

The Annals of Iowa is published quarterly by the State Historical Society of Iowa, the Historical Division of the Department of Cultural Affairs of the State of Iowa. The society operates from two centers, Des Moines and Iowa City. A museum, research library, state archives, special collections, community programming, historic preservation, and membership programs are located at 600 East Locust Street, Des Moines, IA 50319, phone 515-281-5111.
